The New York State Dietetic Association (NYSDA) was founded in 1930 in Rochester, NY by 14 pioneering dietitians. A constitution was adopted and it was voted to affiliate with the American Dietetic Association.

Within the first two decades of organizing, 6 Association members served as ADA Presidents. Six district associations were initially recognized (Rochester, Greater New York, Buffalo, Utica, Central New York and Hudson Valley).

A legacy of service and advocacy was established by these early members and has continued through the years as NYSDA members continue to serve the public through nutrition awareness campaigns, career promotion, research, education and legislative activity on public health issues.
